The Society Has Lost Its Voice

By Richard Hughes

For several years all of the events of the Historical Society began with a powerful, yet poetic, announcement by our colourful and enthusiastic Crier, Bruce Bedell. For each circumstance, the topic of the day was proclaimed in rhyming verse and always with a sharp, humorous twist at the end. We lost our much loved Crier on October 1 when Bruce Bedell passed away, the victim of cancer.

Bruce and his parents were early members of the Society and were proud of their Loyalist background. He left Belleville to pursue his career as a teacher, and at all points in his travels he pursued his love of history and honed his skills in the ancient art of town crier. Upon retirement, Bruce and his wife, Cathy, returned to their roots in Belleville, and he perfected his crier skills, ultimately becoming the official town crier of the City of Belleville and of the Historical Society.

In full medieval costume, with his bold plumed hat, silver hair and trimmed beard, Bruce cut a handsome figure. But his greatest attribute was his constant bright and cheerful smile and positive disposition. We recall at his 50th wedding anniversary party, other criers from distant points came to pay tribute to Bruce and were quick to sing his praises.

Those who make such major contributions to their communities and deep impressions on their friends and colleagues do not pass away—their memories remain vivid and warm as long as we do live.

Belleville Downtown Façade Improvement Program

By Vern Whalen

At our October 21, 2014, Monthly Presentation, our guest speaker was Greg Pinchin, Special Projects Planner for the City of Belleville. The topic of his presentation was the Downtown Façade Improvement Program.

Belleville's downtown has many buildings dating from the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Many have unique architectural elements, such as those found in windows and trim. Preservation guidelines are included in the Façade Improvement Program which the City of Belleville has implemented through the Community Improvement Plan of 2002.

The property owners that want to fix up their commercial buildings downtown are eligible to apply to receive a grant for up to half the cost of the improvements to a maximum of $7500 for a single façade or $10,000 if they are working on two or more façades. The primary purpose is to encourage people to preserve the architecture and character of the downtown.

To ensure that existing buildings are restored in a manner sympathetic to their architectural style, bringing continuity to the downtown, the Belleville Façade Committee follows a comprehensive set of criteria. The committee consists of two city councillors and three citizen appointees: one from the BDIA, a Heritage Belleville representative and a citizen at large. Greg, acting on behalf of City Hall, serves as the secretary of the committee.

Since 2002, there have been seventy-four applications of which fifty-four have been approved. Forty-one of those fifty-four have been completed and paid for. Some were turned down or cancelled due to a lack of funds. Pictures showing examples of buildings before and after restoration illustrated the overall benefit of the Façade Program.

On the Home Front in Belleville and Hastings County: October and November, 1914

By Laurel Bishop

As fall turned to winter, patriotic rallies were held (Melrose and Marmora), Home Guards were formed (Bancroft), patriotic concerts took place (Belleville) and women everywhere continued to knit socks, scarves, caps and mitts for the men overseas. Excerpts from The Intelligencer follow.

October 7: "To Belleville Citizens. Would it not look as if we had some love and sympathy for our neighbors who have boys and husbands at the front if there was a special day of prayer appointed for the guidance and protection of those who have sacrificed everything for us and for their country. ... From an Old Believer, 90 years of age." (page 8)

October 8: "The Rexall Stores of Canada ... have unanimously agreed to contribute to the Canadian Patriotic Fund FIVE PER CENT of their total purchases of all Rexall Toilet Goods, Rexall Remedies ... for the months from October 15th to December 31st ... McKeown's Drug Store." (page 2)

October 15: "Four car loads of grain, produce, clothing and other supplies are being forwarded to the Belgians from the County of Hastings via special steamship leaving Halifax on October 29th. The first car load is being forwarded from Stirling today." (page 2)

October 15: "Belleville Home Guard. An original poem, composed and written by W. James Savage, a member of the Home Guard. ... O, haven't you heard / Of the Belleville Home Guard, / With Colonel Lazier in command. / The tramp of our feet, / As we march down the street, / On our new asphalt pavement, is grand. / Now just let me say / All who can't go away. / To the scene where the strife has been stirred / Just do your next best, / And throw out your chest, / And drill with the Belleville Home Guard." (page 8)

October 21: "War Reveals Waste of Food. ... The outer coat of grain holds the precious mineral elements which mean so much in vital building and upkeep of body, brain and nerves. ... isn't it astounding that it took war to wake people up to such a fearful waste! ... 'There's a reason' for Grape-Nuts—sold by Grocers everywhere." (page 2)

October 22: "Belleville Recruiting Second Contingent. Canada's Second contribution to the Overseas forces who will fight for the Empire is now in process of enrollment, and lists have been opened at the Belleville Armouries for volunteers from Belleville and vicinity. ... Nearly everyone who enlisted and was accepted, were Englishmen, who are anxious to serve the Mother Country." (page 2)

October 27: "The Red Cross. ... In addition to the Hallowe'en Festival, which is to be held in the Armouries, the ladies have undertaken a Flag Day. ... The flag is very dear to the British heart and every one is anxious to possess and wear one especially at this time." (page 2)

October 27: "Letter from a Soldier Boy. Davenport, England, October 15, 1914. Dear Mother, Father, Sister and Brother: I am dropping you a few lines to let you know that we have arrived in the Old Country at last. ... We have had very good luck with our horses, that is considering the way they were packed in. Out of 633 horses we only lost 13 horses. ... hoping you are well. I remain, Your loving son and brother, Gunner George E. Cronk." (page 3)

November 2: "A cable was received this morning from Capt. E.D. O'Flynn, who is absent with the Over Seas Contingent. He states that the boys are all well, that they are now at Bulford Camp, Salisbury Plains, England. He says the Belleville boys won the tug of war and the light weight boxing championship on the voyage over." (page 1)

November 2: "It was estimated that upwards of two thousand persons were on Saturday evening crowded into the armouries. The occasion was the entertainment under the auspices of the Red Cross Society. The various booths, elaborately decorated, and the midway were sources of great attraction. It being Hallowe'en night; many present were costumed and their dress attracted much attention. ... Upon the stage erected several numbers were given, including drills by the girls of the High School and the boys and girls of the Ontario School for the Deaf." (page 1)

November 9: "The Deacon Shirt Company of this city, through Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., the popular member for West Hastings, received another order for the manufacture of shirts for the war office. ... the company had increased its staff and at present had sufficient work on hand to keep the factory running at full time for some months." (page 2)

November 9: "Belleville Boy's Account [of] Landing Abroad ... Thousands cheered us as we proceeded to the wharf to disembark; bands played the Maple Leaf and Tipperary, our war songs, when we paraded through the streets of the city of Devonport. The people showered us with all kinds of things; the children grasping our hands; the girls and women hugged us—in fact nearly tore us to pieces; buttons, badges, etc., were taken and kept as souvenirs. On all sides we could hear: 'We're so glad you've come'; 'We have a brother, father, or cousin at the front'; 'We hope you get back safe'; 'Good luck to you,' etc. ... Yours very truly, Spafford." (pages 3, 7)

November 17: "Belleville Staccatos. By 'A Major' There is one thing that the war has done for us and that is to cause a tremendous revival of every variety of patriotic music. Just whether or not such an abnormal bringing to light of various aged pro-British strains is to be considered a blessing unadorned or one disguised, rests to a large extent with the success of its presentation to the stunned but loyal ear." (page 7)

November 18: "'Pat' Yeomans Writes Home From Camp ... Dear Mamma.—It is still raining some and has been for the last two days. ... The horse lines are in an awful condition—mud ankle deep. ... We got your leaves all right. Thanks very much. They arrived in good shape, just as you sent them. It certainly is good to see a maple leaf again. It isn't until a person gets somewhere like this that he realizes how much he thinks of such things. We were not the only ones either, for everybody wanted some of them." (page 3)

November 28: "Twenty-two Thousand Canadians Perform at Salisbury; a Splendid Spectacle. ... For the first time the whole Canadian division is out on manoeuvres, which will prove a most welcome change to the keen spirits who, for some time, have been eager to get busy at a real kind of drill which is necessary before they are fit for the front." (page 2)

November 29: "The war has not frightened our good old annual visitor, Santa Claus, away, for Belleville Christmas shopping has certainly begun in our stores. And 'business as usual,' in the various departments of trade is quite evident. Perhaps the war conditions have modified somewhat the preparations for this big festival of the year, but investigation would show that the large stores are very much in the same state of preparedness as they were at this time last year. ... you will begin to wonder if there is not perhaps more of the Christmas spirit abroad than ordinarily is the case. Anxiety and suffering in homes that have now a vacant chair—the old-time tenant of which is perhaps on the Plains of Salisbury ... Thoughts of the suffering and misery across the waters will make Christmas all the more near and dear to Canadians. There will be a meaning to the day it has never held before. And with the increased sentiment will come a wiser practical distribution of little remembrances." (page 7)

The Macs Who Stayed – Part One

By Vern Whalen

They were but a blip on the radar of our history. For only four years beginning in 1956 the Belleville McFarlands hockey team provided some of the best hockey the city had ever or will ever see. Hockey players from various junior, senior and minor professional leagues in North America were recruited. A few had even made it as far as the six-team National Hockey League, even if for just "a cup of coffee" as the saying went.

Let there be no mistake about it, they came to play, and for the most part, to earn a living at it as well. By their second year, they hit pay dirt and won the Allan Cup, emblematic of senior supremacy in Canada. In year three, they won the World Hockey Championship in Czechoslovakia. By year four, a financial scandal rocked the team management as well as that of the city. However, this story is not about the great feats and victories of the Belleville McFarlands, nor about the scandal that killed them. This story is about a group of hockey men who came, who conquered and who stayed in Belleville.

Manitoba-born goalie Gordie Bell began playing professional hockey at the tender age of seventeen for Buffalo in the American Hockey League in 1942. Three years later, he played in eight games for the Toronto Maple Leafs. For the next twelve years, he played for various teams in the American League, and in 1956 played two playoff games for the New York Rangers against the Montreal Canadiens. The following year at thirty-one he was signed by the Belleville McFarlands where he was the backbone of their championship team. In their fourth year, he sustained a serious eye injury in a game. He tried a mask from Jacques Plante but eventually hung up his skates after a handful of games. Gordie finished the year coaching the Macs and later coached the Junior B McFarlands for several years. For a number of years he was a foreman for Harvey McFarland Construction, team sponsor. Gordie succumbed to cancer and died in 1980 at the age of only fifty-five.

Jean Paul Lamirande was a defenceman who was born in 1923 in Shawinigan Falls, Quebec. He played for various teams in the American and Quebec Hockey Leagues. In the late 1940s, he played forty-eight games over three years with the New York Rangers and one game for the Montreal Canadiens in 1954. In 1958, he helped the Whitby Dunlops win the World Championship in Norway. The next year he did the same for the MacFarlands and was chosen the best defenceman of the tournament. In 1960, he joined the Windsor Bulldogs and played for Canada in the 1960 Olympics in Squaw Valley. In 1961, he finished his professional career with Clinton Comets of the Eastern Hockey League. He played locally in Belleville for a few years and worked at Union Carbide (Bakelite). Known by many as "Lammy," he died of cancer in 1975 at the young age of fifty-three.

Right-winger Lou Smrke was born in 1925 in Belgrade, Yugoslavia. At the age of seventeen he was playing for Baltimore in the Eastern Hockey League and later joined the Chicoutimi Sagueneens of the Quebec Senior Hockey League. He played there for eight years, many with his younger brother, Stan. Some great names that opposed him in the league were Herb Carnegie, Willie O'Ree and even Jean Beliveau. By 1958, he joined the McFarlands for their championship in Czechoslovakia. He worked for a time at the Bakelite and spent a number of years as an inspector for the Ontario liquor board. He came back to hockey in the late 1960s to play for the Belleville Mohawks. Lou coached rep minor hockey for a few years, and this author was fortunate to have him as a coach. He was one of the few players to take the city to court over lost wages during the financial scandal, and he did get a settlement. Considered by many as a real pro in life and a gentleman as well, Lou died in 2004 at the age of seventy-nine.

Eddie Marineau was born in Ottawa in 1927 and first played professional hockey in 1947 with Atlantic City in the Eastern Hockey League. Only 5' 7" in height, he weighed about 210 lbs. and was hard to knock off his feet. Adaptable as a forward or defenceman, Eddie played in professional and senior leagues in the USA and Canada prior to joining the Macs. He was integral to their Allan Cup championship in 1958. Later he returned to semi-pro hockey for a few years and finished his playing days with the Belleville Mohawks in 1969 at the age of forty-two. He also worked at Union Carbide (Bakelite) and was married to Wayne "Weiner" Brown's sister, Joan. Often referred to as "Fast Eddie," he died in 2004 at the age of eighty-one.

There were four other Macs who stayed in Belleville. Read about them in the January issue of Outlook.

Archives Plans Unveiled

By Sharon White

On October 16, another milestone was reached in the long journey towards a new home for the Community Archives. A public presentation to show off the archives plans was held in the proposed new space on the second floor of the Belleville Public Library building, following a Project Team meeting with the architect in the morning and an Archives Advisory Committee meeting in the early afternoon.

The presentation opened with a few words by a representative from each partner and the Belleville Public Library Board. Richard Hughes led off, speaking as Chair of the Archives Advisory Committee and President of Hastings County Historical Society. Warden Rick Phillips and Mayor Neil Ellis then said a few words on behalf of Hastings County and the City of Belleville respectively, and Chair of the Belleville Public Library Board, Councillor Garnet Thompson (who is also a member of the Archives Advisory Committee), spoke on behalf of the Library Board. All expressed enthusiasm about the archives project and locating the archives in the modern and attractive library building.

Mark Fluhrer, Director of Recreation, Culture and Community Services outlined the archives project and introduced other members of the Project Team: Joel Carr-Braint, Property Manager, City of Belleville; Sharon White, Archivist; and Trevor Pross and Holly Dewar, senior staff at the Library.

Shoalts and Zaback Architects had created new presentation boards and a video virtual tour of the proposed new archives, which were used by Architect Ray Zaback to explain the different areas and their functions.

The event was well attended by friends and staff/volunteers from the Archives, Historical Society and Library. Some of the display boards can be viewed on the second floor of the Library during November and December, along with some information about the project.

The Plans

The architect has been finalizing details on the architectural drawings, in preparation for a tender process. If things go well, the construction will begin early next year and we will be celebrating a grand opening in the fall.

The renovation work will include new interior walls to create separate areas for visitors, staff, and the archival materials. Creating the storage vaults for the historical documents and photographs will present the biggest challenge. Three vaults are planned: one in the current Canadiana local history room, one in the area now used for reading magazines, and another on a new third floor space to be created above the magazine area. All the necessary structural work will be done before we move in, even in areas not immediately needed, so a later expansion can occur with minimal additional work and expense.

This new floor and the filling in of the "hole" area are the major construction items. The architect and his team will ensure that the floors will support the weight of the many boxes of archival materials. Other renovations for the new archival storage vaults include filling in the existing windows (which will still show as windows from the outside, to preserve the architectural integrity) and adjustments to the mechanical systems for better temperature and humidity control.

chives to the people of Belleville and Hastings County. It was seven years ago that the Society brought the proposal to develop an archives to the City and County Councils and it has worked long and hard with our partners to develop the concept and to raise the funds. The Society is grateful for the generous donations to its capital campaign by foundations, companies and many individuals which raised $250,000 towards the equipment for the new facility.”

Rick Phillips, Warden, Hastings County

“The members of Hastings County Council are pleased that the Joint Archives of Belleville and Hastings County will be located within the Belleville Public Library Building. It is a natural fit for the public archives to be established here and we look forward to our history being preserved for future generations in a safe, professional and accessible way.”

Neil Ellis, Mayor, City of Belleville

“What a great location and an even more impressive partnership the Community Archives of Belleville & Hastings County enjoys. City Council and I are very thankful for the vision, leadership and hard work the Hastings County Historical Society— its many past and present members— has demonstrated this past 57 years in starting, growing and maintaining this impressive archival collection. This success story clearly demonstrates the power and momentum an effective and strategic partnership can accomplish.”

Garnet Thompson, City Councillor and Chair, Belleville Public Library Board

“We are pleased to be taking part in this project to build a modern Archives facility in the Library. We look forward to having an exciting cultural hub downtown with the Library, Art Gallery and Archives all in one convenient location. The Archives will bring in more people to the building and reach new audiences, which will strengthen the Library and Gallery and be a great asset to our community.”

Little Did We Know!

by Mary-Lynne Morgan

The Directors of Hastings County Historical Society had no idea how appropriate the theme for this year’s banquet would be when they asked the Hastings & Prince Edward Regimental Military Museum to cosponsor the evening!

As over 140 people, some in military mess kit, gathered at the Travelodge on Saturday, October 25, they were met with a profusion of poppies, military bagpipes and a bugler to commemorate the centennial of the beginning of World War I. Unfortunately, these military symbols elicited a more immediate remembrance for the two military men, Patrice Vincent and Nathan Cirillo, who were killed recently by home-grown terrorist attacks.

That is not to say the event was a sombre evening—far from it! Lively chatter and lots of laughter filled the room for much of the evening, and guests remained after the official program to socialize and view the informative historical displays provided by the Archives Volunteers. MC for the evening, Mary Thomas, who has written about World War I in her book, David's War, did a fine job of keeping events on track. A welcome provided by Richard Hughes, President of the Society, indicated the exciting times the Society is enjoying at present, and the recent publishing of Director Bill Kennedy's new book, At the Call of King and Country: People of Hastings County in the Great War, 1914-1918. LCol John Inrig brought greetings on behalf of the Hasty Pees Museum, using the occasion to encourage donations of military artifacts to the Regimental Military Museum. Guests also enjoyed a rollicking singsong of World War I hits, led by yours truly, ably accompanied by pianist/singer Rick Penner.

Guest speaker, Dr. Jack Granatstein, Canada's foremost authority on World War I, was introduced by Orland French, who cited a long list of Granatstein's accomplishments with words such as "a slew of honorary doctorates" and "at least sixty books to his credit" as well as describing him as "often taking the contrarian approach" in his assessment of historical events.

Dr. Granatstein provided a compelling argument that the last one hundred days of World War I were critical in winning the war against the Germans, and directly attributable to the work of the Canadians. With the devastating losses the British had incurred, there was a desperate need of major reinforcements. Canadian conscription provided thousands of fresh young soldiers. Unlike at the beginning of the war, when most Canadian recruits were naive Brits who had immigrated to Canada, these young Canadian-born soldiers were well trained, reasonably equipped and under no illusions as they left for battle. Dr. Granatstein also provided interesting assessments of two major Canadian military leaders: Sir Sam Hughes and Col. Arthur Currie, indicating that, in his opinion, Hughes was crazy, and Currie has never received the recognition he deserved for being a brilliant tactician and on-site commander.

Such a successful evening would not have been possible without the generous sponsorship of the following individuals and businesses. The HCHS thanks them sincerely for their support:

Allan's Auto Repair

Bay Mazda

Bel-Con Design-Builders Ltd.

Marney Black & Diane Sule

Belleville Nissan

Dr. Martin Brain, Podiatrist

Bridge Street Dental Centre

Bruce Mackay (Mackay Insurance Brokers Inc.)

John Rawson (Rawson Travel Service Ltd.)

Robert J. Reynolds (Reynolds O'Brien LLP)

John Stockton (CIBC Wood Gundy)

In closing, President Richard Hughes noted that the Hastings County Historical Society is enjoying great success at the moment. In addition to the launch of Bill Kennedy's new book, he cited the successful partnership of the City of Belleville, the County of Hastings and the Society in developing the new Community Archives which, it is hoped, will open in 2015 in the building that currently houses the Belleville Public Library.
